

Leading Online Learning Solution Supports Teachers and Students During Lockdown

Teachers use JogNog Basic free subscription for home study

Press release: Wakefield, MA, March 20, 2020

G7 Research, the maker of the digital learning system JogNog, has provided the JogNog Basic subscription plan for free to teachers and students during the COVID crisis lockdown.

During the lockdown, it has been challenging for teachers to motivate their students when the student is at home and on the other side of a Zoom screen.

With free access to the JogNog Quiz Builder teachers can rapidly create quizzes of any size and deliver them to their students through the JogNog learning system. Teachers get access to all of the specialized badge artwork and can create quiz questions of many different types.

They can have their students complete these quizzes either as an individual challenge or a team challenge and the results will be automatically graded.

Teachers are now very happy to create their own quizzes and JogNog has made its Quiz Builder available at no cost for teachers to create their own quizzes with their own questions.

Stephen Smith, CEO of G7 Research summed it up: “Teachers love our Quiz Builder tool as it lets them personalize review and assessment for each student. With JogNog Basic they can try out JogNog with their own questions and benefit from the automated grading. A huge benefit to teachers and students during this time when students are studying from home.”
